We collect information about our employees when they commence employment with CHICKS and we process it on an on-going basis.

Why do we need to process personal data on our employees?

CHICKS need to process personal data about our employees in order to provide an effective, compassionate and high-quality service and to fulfil our legal and contractual obligations.

Our legal basis for processing personal data

By law, we need a legal basis for processing the personal data of an employee. The legal bases that we use are contract, legal obligation, legitimate interest and, occasionally, with your consent.

Contract:

We have a basis to process your personal data where we have a contract of employment with you. For example, we need your NI number in order to pay you and cannot employ you without it.

Legal obligation:

We have a basis to use your personal information where we need to do so to comply with one of our legal or regulatory obligations. For example, we need to see and copy your passport or other identification to prove that you have the right to work in the UK. We have a legal duty to share information with HMRC and our pension providers.

Legitimate interests:

We have a basis to use your personal information if it is reasonably necessary for us to do so and in our “legitimate interests” (provided that what the information is used for is fair and does not unduly impact your rights).

For example, CHICKS has a legitimate interest to keep your personal data on our systems in order to keep it secure, process it and to provide you with a service.

We only rely on legitimate interests where we have considered any potential impact on you, whether or not our processing is excessive and that our processing does not override your right

Consent:

Consent is given where we ask you for permission to use your information in a specific way and you agree to this. Where we use your information for a purpose based on consent, you have the right to withdraw consent for this purpose at any time. For example, we might ask if we could use your photo on social media but you are free to refuse.

Special categories of personal data are data revealing health, race, religious beliefs, political views, trade union membership, sex life or sexuality or genetic/biometric information. We will process this type of information about you only if we are required to do so and if we have a specific exemption under the GDPR, which are: your explicit consent or if we are required to do so for employment law purposes.

We process the following data because we have a legal obligation to do so. We cannot employ a person without this data.

Rights of employees

Your rights

You have rights in respect of our processing of your personal data which are:

- To access to your personal data and information about our processing of it. You also have the right to request a copy of your personal data (but we will need to remove information about other people).
- To rectify incorrect personal data that we are processing.
- To request that we erase your personal data if:
 - we no longer need it;
 - if we are processing your personal data by consent and you withdraw that consent;
 - if we no longer have a legitimate ground to process your personal data; or
 - we are processing your personal data unlawfully
- To object to our processing if it is by legitimate interest.

- To restrict our processing if it was by legitimate interest.
- To request that your personal data be transferred from us to another company if we were processing your data under a contract or with your consent and the processing is carried out automated means.

If you want to exercise any of these rights, please contact us.

If you have a concern about the way we are collecting or using your personal data, please raise your concern with us in the first instance. You may also contact the Information Commissioner's Office at <https://ico.org.uk/concerns/>.
